When Victor Kennedy isn't working or taking his parents to doctor appointments, he brings his mom, Linda, to The Caring Place. Here, they receive food and personal care supplies. “We don’t know what we’d do without The Caring Place,” Victor said.

A few years ago, Victor asked his mother, who had several health challenges, to come live with him and his wife in Georgetown. “She just lived too far away,” Victor said. In addition to her hearing loss and restricted mobility, Linda was diagnosed with breast cancer last year. “I wanted her with me so that I could take care of her.” Victor also cares for his dad who came to live with him after heart surgery a year ago.

“With all the medications, it’s hard to keep up financially, especially at the beginning of the year. The insurance deductibles really kick us in the rear,” Victor said.

Some of The Caring Place clients who are already constrained by tight budgets, experience even greater financial pressure when they become caretakers for their elderly parents. Our HOPE (Healthy Options for the Elderly) program assists with supplemental food. The Caring Place provides additional help for families by giving them personal care supplies. “We save $50-$60 a month on incontinence supplies alone through the HOPE program,” Victor said. The Kennedy’s also enjoy the fresh vegetables, bread and pastries offered through our Fresh Food For Families program on the 1st, 3rd and 5th Monday of each month.

“We’re happy about The Caring Place. It would be a lot harder for us without them,” Victor said.

HOPE (Healthy Options for the Elderly)

Through our partnership with the Central Texas Food Bank (CTFB) in Austin, the HOPE program provides a food order to eligible individuals age 55 and over, once per month, at no cost. A HOPE food order contains nutritional, supplemental non-perishable groceries for seniors.

♥ You do not have to be a client of The Caring Place to participate in HOPE, but a separate HOPE application and annual renewal are required.
♥ Proof of age and income is required.
♥ Delivery is available for those who are homebound.
♥ HOPE food is distributed on the 2nd Tuesday of each month at The Caring Place from 9:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m.
Behind the Scenes at The Caring Place!

Many hands and hearts keep things running smoothly

Ever wonder what happens to your clothing and household goods once you donate them? Well, we're glad you wondered, because it really is amazing to see the process from drop-off, to placement on the shelves in The Shops at The Caring Place, to helping our neighbors in need.

When you make a donation of clothing, household goods or furniture, our Donations department volunteers and staff separate the merchandise into labeled bins. After the first sort, volunteers and staff further parse the items, ensuring that they are clean, in working order and otherwise made ready for sale. Saleable items are then priced and placed on the sales floor. Larger items, such as desks and tables, are also inspected, priced and moved to the floor for sale.

In 2015, $1,508,453 of our funding came from the sale of donated, gently used and new items in our thrift store, which equals 66% of our total revenue received. The revenue generated from sales in The Shops at The Caring Place, covers all of the operating costs associated with running the organization. This ensures that 100% of all financial donations to The Caring Place go directly to help area families in need.

So every time you donate clothing or household items to The Caring Place, know that your donations make a difference! Thank you!

Where Resources and Needs Meet:
Georgetown Health Foundation Supports The Caring Place

Last summer, Georgetown Health Foundation awarded a $100,000 grant ($50,000 a year for two years) to fund medical assistance programs at The Caring Place. This grant helps provide financial assistance with certain medical, prescription, optical and dental procedures to individuals in financial crisis.

In November, 2015, Georgetown Health Foundation published a study to get a better understanding of the concerns and needs of residents in Southeast Georgetown. The Southeast Georgetown Needs Assessment identified 10 critical needs, including access to affordable healthcare. Last year, The Caring Place provided 658 people with resources for medical assistance. “The grant enables us to provide additional medical assistance to our growing client base,” said Ginna O’Connor, Executive Director of The Caring Place.

“We want to partner with organizations that focus on the health of our community,” said Suzy Pukys, Vice President of Strategic Philanthropy for Georgetown Health Foundation. “We support The Caring Place because they are at ground zero for crisis mitigation.”

In addition to its grant making activities, Georgetown Health Foundation is seeking ways it can support broader and more responsive initiatives that promote community health. Partnerships and collaboration with other organizations, board members and volunteers is key to that effort. “We are challenging ourselves to consider other ways that we can responsively support the community and nonprofits,” Suzy said. “No one organization can fix all the problems. It’s going to take all of us working together.”

“The Caring Place is at the epicenter of meeting the basic human needs of people in crisis.” – Suzy Pukys

Created in 2006 through a partnership between Georgetown Healthcare System and St. David’s HealthCare, revenue from Georgetown Health Foundation’s activities go directly to organizations that help the poor and underserved populations in Georgetown.

The Caring Place honored 250 of its volunteers and their guests on April 10th by treating them to a late afternoon showing of My Big Fat Greek Wedding 2 at City Lights Theater in Georgetown. “It was a great movie and a lot of fun. I really enjoyed it,” said volunteer, Janice Lindsey.

There is a scene in the movie where the entire family teams up to plan the wedding. This scene is reminiscent of what goes on at The Caring Place every day: volunteers and staff pooling their expertise and time to make the operation run smoothly for our clients! “It takes a lot of people to fulfill our mission, and our volunteers help make it possible for us to serve our community. We value each and every one of our dedicated volunteers,” said Ginna O’Connor, Executive Director.

“I loved it. The movie was so funny!”
Deanna Lee, Volunteer

“It was so fun. We got to socialize with people we don’t normally see. My friend, who is 91, sat there with me and laughed and laughed at the movie. And the popcorn was great!”
Gerry Carolan, Volunteer

“The Caring Place Volunteers Enjoyed a Night at the Movies!”
The following volunteer awards were given in two categories for service in 2015.

The Doris Krohmer Memorial Service Award

Doris Krohmer was a volunteer who embraced The Caring Place mission, and was instrumental in the agency's development. Doris was a visionary leader who demonstrated empathy and compassion. She was known for her bright smile, positive outlook, and for providing extraordinary support to The Caring Place. This award recognizes volunteers who consistently exceed expectations and embody the spirit of this dedicated and giving person.

Dear Friends,

It’s an exciting time here at The Caring Place. We are about to launch a new initiative that will allow us to help more people in need in the rural areas of Williamson County. As our county and organization have grown, The Caring Place has become increasingly aware of the barriers that exist to access the programs and services we provide for those living outside of Georgetown. One of the critical barriers is the lack of transportation.

Therefore, in response to this need, and for the first time in its 31 years of service to our community, we are venturing outside of our Georgetown location to engage in a 6-month pilot project that establishes outreach locations in Florence, Granger and Jarrell. In the initial phase of this outreach project, we will work with partners in these rural communities to make our services as accessible as possible to those in financial crisis by providing services remotely on a limited basis. In November, at the end of the 6-month pilot period, we will evaluate the outreach initiative, and determine next steps in each community.

We also just celebrated our incredible volunteers at our annual Volunteer Appreciation and Recognition event. I continue to learn about the contributions our gifted volunteers so selflessly make to support our mission. Thanks to all our volunteers for being awesome!!!

Thank you for your support—you make our work at The Caring Place possible. We continue to do more great things together!

Barry Haag
President, Board of Directors
2015-2016

“It is a very hard thing when we can’t supply everything our children need. It’s great to know that The Caring Place will give us a helping hand.”
